

Lady of Gaia

A Companion Story to Daughter of Orevelle

Some stories must be told - even if it breaks your heart to tell them.

Kathleen is fated to wed the village drunkard on her sixteenth birthday.

When she goes into the forest searching for a way to live with her fate, she finds a love that will span two worlds, and stand in the face of greed, pettiness, and laws neither she nor her lover are powerful enough to ignore. Still, Kathleen will not forget the man she loves, or the son she left behind.
